My Client of the Future, NOW!

*Is there such a thing
as a spiritual coach?
Someone who combines business coaching with spiritual coaching?*

I have a client now, let's call her Michele, who when we met was looking for a business coach with a strong spiritual background. What she was finding was she would meet a coach with a strong business acumen but little or no spiritual insights, or just the opposite, strong in spirituality but weak in business skills. And then we met! I'll let Michele tell it in her own words:

"My search for a professional coach began as an interest in what one had to offer me. As time went on, I became disillusioned. I wondered if I would find someone who would understand me and the spiritually-based lens in which I view my personal and professional worlds. As fate would have it, Mark was attending an event I helped plan in support of a friend. We chatted and I shared what I was looking for in a coach. Mark replied in kind with his spiritual as well as his business "credentials." The timing was perfect. Philosophy, finances and personalities meshed, allowing for an incredible coaching experience."

The "Thinking Big:
Focused and Organized Newsletter" is written on a monthly basis.

How is Michele Now?

We'll let Michele tell it in her own words again, "Coaching helped me define and deepen my spiritual practice through new insights and resources gained through my time with Mark. This enabled me to broaden my vision of what I wanted for myself professionally. My connection with Mark was not accidental. It was focused and organized by the universe, as will be the next level of my professional success. Thank you, Mark"
