I have a friend, Rich Trenk, who is always saying, "It's all good!" He repeats it over and over again, with a big smile on his face, and I love it! So one day I asked Rich what he meant by this very powerful mantra. I wasn't anticipating such a well thought out response.

"Mark, as an attorney I am totally focused on solving my clients problems. To achieve this efficiently and effectively I must be positive, organized, prepared and ready!"

"Most importantly I must know our end game, where we want to get to, and to communicate this clearly. I call this the Strategy of Solving a Problem. It's a process and goals play a key role in making this happen."

"There's no client situation that's perfect. So my attitude regardless of the challenge is, "It's all good!" We know where we are, we know where we want to go. We have a plan. So, no matter what the situation, "It's all good!"

How is Rich Now?

As the leader of his law firm, Trenk, DiPasquale, Webster, Della, Fera, and Sodono, P.C. Rich uses these same principles and strategies to help keep the people at his firm and their clients moving forward, what Rich passionately calls - Momentum. And a huge piece of this momentum is listening because Rich embraces the basics, the fundamental ABC's - Always Be Communicating.

As we all now know, "It's all good!"
